"I rode four days on a bus to get from Lake Titicaca to Asunción, Paraguay, and it was worth it!"

—Peruvian Quechua Pastor Daniel Suasaca – Dec, 2005

A remarkable Quechua pastor from Puno, at the shores of 12,500 ft. high Lake Titicaca, Daniel Suasaca was one of 32 ministers from five nations who recently met in Asunción Paraguay, for a month of intensive training at a seminar of the Latin American Advanced School of Theology.

During the past twelve years Daniel has led the transformation of a small congregation of eight believers into a thriving Assemblies of God church of over one thousand. LAAST Seminars has played an important role in that process.

This was Daniel's third attendance at a LAAST seminar. The advanced leadership training he received this time has blessed him again with a new set of tools that he will wisely apply to the local needs of his Quechua people.

As Seminar Director and Instructor of Missiology, it was exciting for Jim to see how this man now plans to lead his church in prayer, giving and the sending of missionaries from Peru to unreached peoples around the world.

Your faithful prayers and generous support have made all this possible.
Thank you so very, very much.
